gas light, six feet from the floor, and she was instantly h a blaze. Ferrified, she ran down stairs to the stage, where Mr. Moore immediately laid her down, and with he a blaze. Terrified, she ran down stairs to the stage, where Mr. Moore immediately laid her down, and with the sid of Mr. François Ravel, crushed out the flames by enveloping her in his cost and a heavy green baize which hung there. This occupied but a few seconds, and sille. Gene was removed to her room; the best immediate remedies were applied, and messengers sent in every direction for mocical aid, which promptly arrived. In half an hour Mile. Gene was removed to her home, in charge of her mother and Dr. Thibault, who pronounced the injuries aitigether external, and, although severe, by no means such as to endanger her ife.

In connection with this and affair, I will venture to state that in no similar establishment in the world are better or more ample means provided to guard against all secidents by fire. An abundant supply of water is laid see by large hydrants in every part of the building, front and rear, with a full supply of hose, in good condition, always attached. Buckets, kept constantly filled, are placed within easy reach, on, nader, above, and on every side of the stage; the axes and hatchets are also placed wherever they can possibly be useful; large, heavy woollow blankets hang in the entrances on each side of the proceed inn; every light on the stage, in the first, the wings and borders, is guarded by projecting wirework; no moveable, open lights are allowed to be used in any part of the building, and a most rigid and careful waten be kept day and night by faithful, steady men, who have done duty here for many years.

Thus, it cannot be denied that all proper precautions are taken, but no foreight could provide against this action on the part of the lady herself.

Assuring you that Mile. Gene is surrounded by sympatining friends, I remain, yours respectfully.

W. CORBYN.

The Case of the Rev. Richard Cox against his Wife. SUPERIOR COURT—TRIAL TERM. Before Chief Justice Oakley. STH DAY—CASE ADJOURNED TILL MONDAY NEXT. MARCH 20 .- A statement having been made by a juro at Mr. Willard Harvey, one of the jurers, was unwell that Mr. Willard Harvey, one of the jurors, was unwell, and unable to attend the sittings of the Court at present, the Judge declared that the further trial of the case must stand over—as the Court would not sit to-morrow—until Monday next, at 11 o'clock A. Af.

The Judge then addressed the jury substantially in the hillowing words:—I would take occasion to suggest to the jury, at this was a case in which the public took a deep interest, and it would naturally give rise to a good deal of conversation—that they should refrain from conversing with any one upon the subject during the time the case stands adjourned. If any person should approach any one of the jury upon the subject, it would be the daty of such juror, not only to refrain from listening to him, but to report his name to the Court, as it was a high offence in the eyes of the law. It would be a wiss precaution, therefore, to retrain from conversing even with each other upon the subject. With this caution, gentlemen, you are discharged till Monday next at 11 e'clock A. M.

Police Intelligence.
ALLEGED EMBEZZLEMENT BY A CONFIDENTIAL CLERI Sergeant Bowyer, of the Chief's office, arrived in this seity yesterday from Pittsburg, Pa., having in custody a young man named James McGrath, who stands charged with having embezzled about $3,000 from his employer, John M. Babersham, of No. 13 Broadway, McGrath, it appears, had for some years past been the confidential elerk of the complainant; and being well posted in the allakes of Mr. Habershams, was authorized by him, during the sickness of the latter, to transact all his business. Entire charge of the concern was placed in the custody of McGrath, who, it appears, was tempted by the opportunity thus afforded to defraud his employer out of a large amount of money. On the 29th of February last, while Mr. Habersham was confined to his room, McGrath sademly disappeared, His absence at that particular moment caused Mr. Habersham a great deal of uneasiness. In a few weeks after his sudden departure, McGrath wrote to his employer, and, acknowledging his peculations, said he felt extremely sorry for his misdeeds, and hoped that his conduct would not be looked apon harshly. Mr. Habersham immediately wrote to his brother William, in Georgia, and begged him to hasten to New York and attend to the effairs of the complainant; Upon examining the books of the complainant it was found that money to the amount of three or four thecusand dollars had been embezzled by McGrath. Some found that money to the amount of three or four thecusand dollars had been embezzled by McGrath. Some from the Pittsburg police that McGrath had delivered himself up to the authorities in that city and was quite willing to be conveyed back to New York for trial. Sargeant Bowyer was sent atter the fugitive, with the necessary documents. This officer arrived here yesterday, and the prisoner was upon being taken before Justice Osborne, at the Mayor's office, committed for examination. Officer Fox, of the Pittsburg police, says that McGrath was apparently crazy when he came to the station house, and langined that officers from New York were continual -CURIOUS CASE OF REMORSE OF CONSCIENCE. Accident on the Faudson River Railroad.

[From the Albany Evening Journal, March 20.]
The city was thrown into a state of in enase commotion last evening by the rumor that a train of cars had been thrown off the track about two miles belowithe city, and forly persons killed. This, it was soon ascertained, was a very great exaggeration, as, while an accident had occurred at the point designated, no lives were lest. The accident was caused by the dropping of the firspan of the locomotive. This passed undereath the tender and the express and baggage cars without harm, but it was caught under the wheel of the first passenger car, which was thrown on to its side and was dragged thus about 300 yards, and the second passenger car was thrown entirely from the track. Both cars were full of passengers, and, while many received slight bruises and scratches, only ore was injured seriously—loceph Vadney, of Greenbush, who had one leg broken. George B. Woolrige, Sergeant at Arms of the Assembly, was badly wended but his injury was caused by jumping from the pastern of the pastern of

His right leg as broken in two places. He bere his pain with great fortifude, and was carefully attended to by Drs. Armsby, March and others, on his arrival at the de-pot. He is confortable to-day. Several splintered bones were taken from the figsh.

Two old men, brothers, sixty-five and seventy years of age, named Plite, had aarrow-scapes. The legs of one were dragged under the first par, and the sole of his boot torn off, but no bones were broken. The other was no closely pressed that the case of his gold watch was torn off.

The alarm and excitement was intense, but gratitude for escape was the predominant feeling. We do not hear that the accident was the result of carelessness on the part of any one; but it is made a matter of complaint that the beil rope had been disengaged, which prevented communication with the engineer—in this case perhaps unnecessary, as the unusual commotion of the train must have been sufficient notice to him. But the rope should never be detached until the train reaches its destination.

Junge Gould, of Troy, was bruised in the head, but not seriously. His lady and two children escaped unburt. Gov. Braper, of New York, received a severe contasion on his thigh, and a slight injury on the side of his head, but is in no other way injured. E. W. Fish, Esq., of Brooklyn, was slightly bruised. It was really a merciful assessment.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

BRILLIANT NOVEL A PUBLISHED THIS MORNING.
ASPEN COURT: A STORY OF OUR OWN TIME.
By Shirley Brioks, author of "Miss Violet and her Offer

By Shirief Brooks, author of "miss vince his new fac."

Ac.

In one vol. of 504 pp., neatly bound in cloth. Price $1.25.

Mr. Brooks has written ne book to compare with this in matter—so full of thought, humor and open-ration. It is, as yet, his master work. To a style at all times light, sirr, brilliant, he has now added more serious graces. We have the airy satire, the fresh expression, the humorous suggestion; but we have these in a closer relation than was the wont of this light and graceful writter to the more sacred sympathies of human life. Mr. Brooks' grains seems to have hain "in the sun" of late. His mind has rivered and this touch attained to greater mastery and vigor.—Athenseum.

interest. Brooks' grains seems to have lain "in the sun" of late. His mind has rivered and his touch attained to greater mastery and viger.—Atheneum.

Mr. Brooks is dively and genial, and he paints life as he sees it. He has knowledge of character, and he describes it more clearly, for his freedom from morbid views and fanatical impulses. His powers are very considerable. It is a decided success.—London Time att.

The story has made a hit. The knowledge of town life, and the delineation of the dramatis persons, who habitually perform so that serio comic stage, are perfect in their array.—Lossian Globe.

Mr. Brooks has power of original thought. This work is remarkable for its shiftly laketches; its hits at riying follies, as they are embodied in manners, and especially in delineations of character.—London Press.

An agreeable and very amusing novel, full of intense interest.—London Examiner.
